WILLIAM ADAMS

TO PERPETUATE

Hon. Reed Smoot Heads General Organization of Younger Utahns.

MANY CHARTER MEMBERS.

People of All Portions of State Respond to Movement and Assist In Forming Society.

As the result of the Assembly hall meeting on the morning of July 24, a parent organization which will include the descendants of the Utah pioneers, and which will have for its purpose the perpetuation of the spirit of pioneer day, was formed.

day, was formed.

The Daughters of the Pioners, a society which has been in vigorous shape for a number of years, did the preliminary work in preparing for yesterday's convention. The new organization in no way supplants this one, but will work entirely independent of it, each having a field of its own, one to collect data, hold social meetings, and gather relics of pioneer times, the other to prepare celebrations for July 24, and keep the day alive in the hearts of the people.

the day anye in the hearts of the people.

An organization was perfected yesterday, with Hon. Reed Smoot as its head, and this will continue for two years, when another election will be held. If the organization succeeds as it is hoped it will, this election will be attended by delegates from local societies in every Utah town.

An executive committee will shortly be appointed by the officers, which will have general charge during the organizing period of the next year.

The list of charter members who signed at the meeting yesterday is as follows:

PATHETIC DEATH.

Story of Young Lady's Heroic Struggle Against Fatal Disease.

A pathetic death occurred last evening at St. Mark's hospital, when Emily K. Parker succumbed to consumption after a 10 years' struggle with the disafter a 10 years' struggle with the disease. Miss Parker came to Salt Lake, as she thought in time to get the upper hand of the threatened danger, but it seemed that her constitution was not strong enough to make a successful contest. She secured a stenographic position with the state land board, but more recently with the Newhouse interests in this city. Miss Parker's mother, sister and brother followed her to Salt Lake, the two latter having been stricken with consumption also. As no stricken with consumption also. As no progress toward recovery was made, the sister and brother went to Florida, where they finally died, the brother being called away, only a few weeks ago.
The brunt of the battle of the family's support fell on Emily, and she, too, finally yielded to the inevitable, after a vain attempt lately to postpone it by a short sojourn at Los Angeles, Mrs. Parker has been notified in Florida, and has started for Salt Lake.

MEAT OR CEREALS

A Question of Interest to All Careful Persons.

Arguments on food are interesting. Many persons adopt a vegetarian diet on the ground that they do not like to feel that life has been taken to feed on the ground that they do not like to feel that life has been taken to feed them, nor do they fancy the thought of eating dead meat.

On the other hand, too great consumption of partly cooked, starchy oats and wheat or white bread, pastry, etc., produces serious bowel troubles, because the bowel digestive organs, (where starch is digested), are overtaxed and the food ferments, producing gas, and microbes generate in the decayed food, frequently bringing on pertionitis and appendicitis.

Starchy fod is absolutely essential to the human body. Its best form is shown in the food "Grape-Nuts," where the starch is changed into a form of sugar during the process of its manufacture. In this way, the required food is presented to the system in a pre-digested form and is immediately made into blood and tissue, without taxing the digestive organs.

A remarkable result in nourishment is obtained; the person using Grape-Nuts gains quickly in physical and mental strength. Why in mental? Because the food contains delicate particles of Phosphate of Potash obtained from the grains, and this unites with the albumen of all food and the combination is what nature uses to rebuild worn out cells in the brain. This is a scientific fact that can be easily proven by ten day's use of Grape-Nuts. "There's a Reason." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Four generations were représented at the large garden party given at the home of Gen. Robert T. Burton, yesterday afternoon, at his country place on State street below Twelfth South. The extensive grounds were beautifully decorated with a number of large flags, a feature of the after noon being the hoisting of an immense one in commemoration of the same occurrence on Ensign peak, 60 years before, in which Gen. Burton took a part. Hammocks, swings, backet ball and croquet made pleasure for the many guests, while an elegant repast was served in the evening. Miss Preale Clarke gave a delightful party at her — on Tenth East Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Irene Short. "Five Hundred" was played, after which a novelty in the form of a sithouette game was the feature. After the likenesses of the guests were taken, they were placed upon the wall and the originals guessed at. The one guessing the greatest number was the prize winner. Afterwards, a musical contest game was played and delicious refreshments were served. Miss Short and Frank Manning won prizes.

E. L. Sheets returned lately from a week's fishing trip in Idaho.

Miss Jennie Romney, Mrs. F. C. Anderson and two daughters, Mrs. Brown and Miss Pearl Anderson of Los Angeles arrived in the city yesterday. They will spend a month visiting relatives and friends.

After the business meeting at the assembly hall yesterday, the "Sons and Daughters of the Pioneers" adjourned to the Lion House where a good old-fashioned handlshake and visit were indulged in and comfortable old time refreshments partaken of. Much credit is due the committee headed by Mrs. Anne Groesbeck, for the efficient manner in which the large crowd of nearly 200 was taken care of in the refreshment line. The buttermilk, doughnuts, home made sandwiches, ice cream and cake were just the kind grandma used to serve.

Miss Jeannette Luman gave a bridge luncheon at the Knutsford this afternoon for Miss Ethelyn Gardner and Miss June Whittemore. The table decerations were in Shasta daisies, the place cards being hand painted in the same flower. Covers were laid for 16.

WILLIAM ADAMS.

eral chapel of Joseph William Taylor at noon today. Beside a large number of friends and acquaintances, the O. R. C. and B. of R. T. were represented. Mr. Adams was a prominent member of both organizations. The railroad men contributed their ritualistic services to complete rites. The speakers found much in the dead man's character to eulogize. He was a direct descendant of Adams, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Adams was undoubtedly one of the best known and most liked railroad man in the intermountain region. In point of service most liked railroad man in the intermountain region. In point of service he was the second oldest conductor in service in this district, having served local roads for the past 26 years. Those who have worked with him are eloquent in their speeches of him,

DEATH WAS PATHETIC.

DEATH WAS PATHETIC.

The death of Mr. Adams was pathetic and has not been told correctly or in full, according to Harry McCune and Ernest Nebeker, Adams' brakemen, who were the first to reach their injured companion's side after the accident. Mr. McCune discussed the pitiable affair yesterday evening, "There never was a whiter, squarer man than 'Will' Adams. It was his care and thoughtfulness towards the safety of other that caused his death. I have worked with him for the past 18 months and never saw him give the engineer the signal to start until he had looked over the train to see there were no "icers" or 'watermen' on the top of the cars as these men are often jarred to the ground when a train starts suddenly. His engine was switching on another track and as Will stepped to one side to look down his trin he stepped directly in under the rear of the engine. It was not moving at all fast but he was right under the wheels.

"I AM GOING TO DIE."

"I AM GOING TO DIE."

"Nebeker and I were at his side in a moment and he was unconscious when we picked him up. His left foot was cut off; the lower half of the leg dis-jointed and the skin peeled back to the hip and the side of his head cut and bruised and hand cut off. Dr. Burton, the company's physician at Milford boarded the train and did everything in boarded the train and did everything in his power to make poor Billy com-fortable, 'Will' regained consciousness soon after the train started and talked rationly to those round him. 'Harry, I am going to die" he said. "Don't talk that way, old man," I answered.

MEN WEEP LIKE CHILDREN.

"He held up his hand, or rather, the stump, where it had been ground off at the wrist and answered, 'Who would want to live, Harry?' All the way to Sevier bridge, where he died, he remained rational and not a whimper, nor a groan escaped his lips. After repeating that he was going to die for the last time, his eyes grew glassy and the doctor said he was dead. The boys sobbed like children and turned away to keep the sight dead. The boys sobbed like children and turned away to keep the sight from their eyes. Billy's face was not badly scratched, however, one thing we were thankful for. The accident happened at 5:25, just as the little station was gray and cold, death came just as the sun began to make everything bright.

LOVED BY EVERYBODY

"LOVED BY EVERYBODY.

"Let me tell you again, that there was never a bigger hearted fellow than Adams, and no man was ever more loyal to his employers and whiter with his fellow-employes. He was known and liked by everybody from the superintendent of the road down to the section hands. A great big, rough fellow by the name of Donahue, who seldom shows feeling of any kind, cried like a baby when he saw Will lying there on the car floor bidding us all good-bye."

Members of the O. R. C. and B. of R. T. and officials of the Salt Lake Route, and those who knew William Adams, slightly and well, echo these sentiments and this esteem. The two organizations named took an active part in the funeral service and contribued heavily to the many floral offerings. The pailbearers were chosen from among the men, with whom Mr. Adams was best acquainted during life.

NEW BOOK OF RULES.

Short Line Issues One Involving Several Signal Changes (Special to the "News.")

Ogden, July 25 .- On Aug. 1, a new book of rules governing the employes of the Oregon Short Line railway will go into effect. Some important changes in different signals, etc., have been made. That a comprehensive and uniform understanding of the rules might be had by the officials a meeting was held in Ogden yesterday afternoon, which was attended by W. E. Costello, superintendent of the Utah division, his assistant, E. N. Botsford, all the chief train dispatchers and train masters of the division. The rules were all thoroughly discussed and will be explained by these gentlemen to the employes under them in the various departments. book of rules governing the employes

Senator Clark Says If Vein is Genuine He Will Extend Salt Lake Route to Fields.

(Special to the "News.")

St. George, Washington Co., July 24 .-Joseph Coyle, a citizen of this county, discovered what has proven to be a 10foot vein of genuine cannel coal, equal to that of Australia. The claim is located above Springdale on the north fork of the Virgin river. Mr. Coyle has succeeded in interesting outside capital and has received a personal letter from Senator W. A. Clark to the effect that If there was a 10-foot vein of cannel coal in Washington county he would extend his railroad into the region,
